

Abstract of the Invention

Systems and methods are provided for delivering both PMP communications, for example standard cellular 5 communications via a base station, and also delivering P2P communications, for example, communications between two mobile stations, using the same spectral resources for both types of communication.